ANNOUNCEMENT.

Yielding to the advice of his physicians Mr. Joseph Pulitzen has withdrawn entirely from the editorship of THE WORLD.

For the past two years Mr. PULITZER has been unable, by reason of a misfortune to his sight, to give a personal supervision to the conduct of his journal. In the opinion of his physicians the irksomeness of this imperfect and unsatisfactory connection with its management has prevented a completer restoration of his sight.

To secure relief from what is felt to be a hindrance to recovery, the entire control of THE WORLD has been vested in an Executive Board of its principal editors, who have been long in its ser vice and have conducted it in the absence of its chief. The change is thus more nominal than otherwise. It involves no change of men, of methods, of principle or of policy. THE WORLD will continue to be guided by the ideas of the man who made it what it is. It will follow the lines marked out by him in dedicating this journal to the public service-to the cause of justice, of real silver bells. good morals and good government.

Those to whom the management of THE WORLD is intrusted will miss his inspiring direction, his sure intuitions Germany, writes that before sailing for of what is right and best, and his constant enforcement of a high and still higher ideal of excellence. But they Misses Shipley, of Cincinnati. will endeavor to prove their loyalty to him and to fulfil their obligation to the public by keeping THE WORLD's course true to the chart which he has so fellowship, goes abroad to pursue her special plainly marked out in his splendidly successful direction of its progress in is Greek. The patient gradually becomes nervous, restless and tritiable, and there is often more or less loss of sleep, with prostration instead of recuperation from the night's rost.

"These symptoms will in many crees be attended by pains in the side, buck or abdower, and the nervourness and once of weakness will become more and more marked, until the sufferer declares she is tired all the time, every movement or exer tion being an effort. Then follow the long train of disagreeable and often painful local symptoms, in-cluding leucorthuss, irregularities, weak back, dis-placements, fearing down pains, congestion, inflammation, ulceration or ovarian difficulties. These symptoms will be followed by gradually confirmed

" Nothing can be more abourd than to believe, as most women do, that these affections are incurable. most women do, that these affections are incurable. The fact that they have tried many physicians, who have falled to effect a cure, does not by any means prove that the dicease cannot be cured by a physician who has made a special study and investigation of such chronic difficulties. Ro physician can be a like skilful in the cure of all classes of dicease, and the general practitioner has neither the time nor the facilities to give that investigation and study necessary to acquire the proper knowledge. atudy necessary to acquire the proper knowledge and treatment of these chronic affections. It is the speciallet who by research and practical experience among thousands of similar cases has an absolute Knowledge of the Exact Conditions and the necessary remedies to cure, to whom suf; ferers should apply for treatment.

"Again, the treatment used by the ordinary physician is of a very harsh nature, which not only Coes no good, but often proves injurious in its effects, leaving the patient in a worse condition than before. All this is wrong the treatment and remedies used should be used and efficacious. Nature has bountifully provided harmless vegetable remedies for just these conditions, and under their restorative effects the digestive and assimilative powers are improved, the blood ciransed and puri-fied, the versous system invigorated, the local symptoms gradually disappear, and health and strength take the place of weakness and prostra-
